

Hegel for Social Movements

By

Andy Blunden

BRILL

LEIDEN | BOSTON

Contents

Acknowledgements XI

List of Figures XII

PART 1

Introduction

- 1 Why Hegel
 - §1 For Hegel, Ideas were Forms of Activity 3
 - §2 'Thought' Means Norms of Human Activity 5
 - §3 Hegel's Influence on Modern Philosophy is Immense 7
 - §4 Hegel is Very Difficult to Read 9
 - §5 Plan of this Book 11

- 2 The Young Hegel and What Drove Him 13
 - §1 Germany was Fragmented, and Socially and Economically Backward 13
 - §2 Hegel was a Modernist Opponent of Liberalism 16
 - §3 The Main Difference between Hegel and Marx is the Times They Lived In 18
 - §4 The "Spirit of a People" was Rooted in an Historical Form of Life 19
 - §5 Zeitgeist Remains a Widely Accepted, if Problematic, Concept of Spirit 21
 - §6 In What Sense was Hegel an Idealist? 23
 - §7 Spirit and Material Culture 29

- 3 Hegel's Idea of Science and Philosophy 32
 - §1 The Subject Matter of Philosophy 32
 - §2 The Diversity of Philosophical Views are Parts of a Single Whole 34
 - §3 From Where to Begin? 37
 - §4 The Phenomenology and the Logic 39

- 4 The Phenomenology and 'Formations of Consciousness' 43
 - §1 How can We Conceptualise a 'Formation of Consciousness'? 43

§2	How do We Conceive of a Formation of Consciousness as a Whole ?	45
§3	What can be Called a 'Formation of Consciousness'?	46
§4	The Dynamics of 'Formations of Consciousness' is in the Logic	47
§5	The Importance of the Master-Servant Narrative is Exaggerated	48
§6	How the Phenomenology was 'Rediscovered'	51
5	Hegel as Philosopher of Social Movements	53
§1	It is Hegel's Logic which Makes Him the Philosopher of Social Movements	53
§2	Hegel Knew Emancipatory Social Movements, but No Labour Movement	54
§3	A Concept is a Form of Practice	58
§4	A Social Movement is Understood as an Entire Process of Social Change	60
§5	How to Read Hegel and What to Read	62

PART 2

The Logic

6	The Subject Matter of the Logic	67
§1	The Logic is the Logic of Formations of Consciousness	67
§2	The Logic is the Foundation for a Presuppositionless Philosophy	69
§3	The Logic Studies the Inner Contradictions within Concepts	71
§4	The Problem of "Moving Concepts"	73
§5	The Logic Concerns Real Situations, Not Mathematical Abstractions	75
7	The Three Divisions of the Logic: Being, Essence and Notion	78
§1	The Starting Point of the Logic: Being	78
§2	Being is the Concept In-Itself, Not yet Conscious of Itself	80
§3	Essence is Reflection	83
§4	The Notion is the Concept Conscious of Itself	86
§5	Being and Essence Constitute the Genesis of the Notion	89
§6	Each Division has a Distinct Form of Movement or Development	91

8	The Doctrine of Being, or Ontology	94
§1	“Being is the Absolute” Marks the Beginning of Philosophy	94
§2	Being, Nothing and Determinate Being	96
§3	Quality, Quantity and Measure	98
§4	In the Sphere of Being it’s Just One Damn Thing After Another	100
§5	Social Movements Do Not Exist Until They Realise It	101
9	The Doctrine of Essence: Mediation or the Truth of Being	104
§1	Identity, Difference, Diversity, Opposition, Contradiction and Ground	104
§2	The Thing: The Dialectic of Matter and Form	106
§3	Appearance: The Dialectic of Content and Form	108
§4	Actuality: The Dialectic of Cause and Effect, Reciprocity	110
§5	Development is the Struggle of Opposites Which do not Disappear	113
10	The Subjective Notion: Universal, Individual and Particular	115
§1	The Whole is Reconstructed by Rising from the Abstract to Concrete	115
§2	The Subject is What is Active	116
§3	The Subject is the Truth of Being and Essence	117
§4	The Concept is the Identity of the Individual, Universal and Particular	119
§5	The Judgments are Logical Representations of Unmediated Actions	123
§6	Each Moment Mediates between the Other Two	125
11	Subject, Object and Idea	128
§1	The Subject Develops from Abstract to Concrete	128
§2	The Three Phases of Objectification: Mechanism, Chemism and Organism	132
§3	The Idea is the Unity of Life and Cognition	136
§4	Hegel Overcomes the Individual/Society Dichotomy	138
§5	Spirit is Both Substance and Subject	139
	Hegel’s Theory of Action, Part 1: Teleology	141
12	The Subject and Culture: Logic and Ontology	145
§1	Dichotomy is a Problem in the History of Philosophy	145

§2	Hegel has Overcome the Mind-Matter Dichotomy with Logic	146
§3	The Logic Offers a Basis for Interdisciplinary Research		147
§4	Everything is Both Immediate and Mediated	148
§5	Normativity, Attributes and the Idea	149
§6	Hegel and Deconstruction	150
§7	Is Hegel's Logic a Monologue?	151
§8	Brief Outline of Philosophy of Nature	152
§9	Einstein Confirmed Hegel's Approach to Mechanics		153

PART 3

The Philosophy of Right

13	Subjective Spirit
§1	Subjective Spirit, Objective Spirit and Absolute Spirit		157
§2	Psyche, Consciousness and Intellect	160
§3	The Forms of Movement in Subjective Spirit	161
§4	A Contradiction within Subjective Spirit Gives Rise to Objective Spirit	164
14	Social Science as Hegel Saw It	166
§1	Hegel Unfolds Social Theory from the Concept of 'Right'		166
§2	Right may not be True to its Concept	167
§3	Concepts have an Inherent Tendency Towards 'Perfecting Themselves'	169
§4	What is Rational is Real and What is Real is Rational		171
§5	Philosophy cannot Teach the State What it should Be		173
§6	Here is the Rose in the Cross, Now Jump!	174
§7	The Owl of Minerva Takes Flight at Dusk	176
	Hegel's Theory of Action, Part 2: The Free Will		177
15	The Three Parts of The Philosophy of Right: Right, Morality and Ethical Life	180
§1	Right, Morality and Ethics	180
§2	Hegel Rejected the Individualism of Kant's Moral Philosophy	181
§3	Hegel Rationalised the Paternalistic Family	182
§4	The Family, Civil Society and the State	184
§5	Hegel's Critique of Rousseau on the State	186

§6	Logic and History	188
§7	The State in Germany and Europe in Hegel's Times	190
16	Abstract Right	192
§1	The Right to Property is Necessary to Being a Person	192
§2	Contract and Exchange	196
§3	The Form of Movement in Abstract Right	199
	Hegel's Theory of Action, Part 3: Purpose, Intention and the Good	201
17	Morality	212
§1	Conscience and Duty, Good and Evil	212
§2	Hegel's Morality and Present-day Issues in Moral Philosophy	214
§3	Civil Disobedience	218
§4	Ends Justify the Means?	219
§5	The Right of Heroes	221
18	Ethical Life	222
§1	Ethical Life is the Idea of Freedom in the Existing World	222
§2	The Family is the Unit of Ethical Life	223
§3	Civil Society is the Self-governing World of Particular Interests	225
§4	The System of Needs and Labour is the Essence of Ethical Life	227
§5	Hegel Debunks Successive Solutions to the Capitalist Crisis	229
§6	The Classes of Civil Society: the Rich 'Lead' the Poor	230
§7	The Public Authorities are Part of Civil Society, not the State	231
§8	The Corporations	234
19	The State	236
§1	The State is the March of God on Earth	236
§2	The Crown	239
§3	The Executive, the Civil Service and the Public Authorities	243
§4	The Legislature, the Estates and the Classes of Civil Society	244
§5	The Young Marx vs. Hegel on the State	245

20	Critique of Hegel's Philosophy of Right	250
	§1 You, Marx and Hegel on the State	250
	§2 Civil Disobedience is No Crime	251
	§3 Human Rights, Abstract Right and Ethical Life	252
	§4 Universal Suffrage and Participatory Democracy	253

PART 4

Conclusions

21	Marx's Capital and Hegel's Logic	257
	§1 Turning Hegel on His Head	257
	§2 Goethe, Hegel and Marx	258
	§3 Capital	259
	§4 Summary	266
22	Soviet Psychology	267
	§1 Vygotsky, Concepts and Artefact-mediated Actions	267
	§2 A.N. Leontyev on Activities	271
23	Once Again: Hegel for Social Movements	272
	§1 Collaborative Projects	272
	§2 Solidarity	274
	References	277
	Index	279

Acknowledgements

I owe a debt to countless friends and comrades, both activists like myself and Hegel scholars, thanks to whom I have developed my understanding and interpretation of Hegel over the past 30 years. In particular, I want to thank the participants in my annual Hegel Summer Schools 1998–2011 and in my Hegel Reading group 2014–2018, and three people in particular: Darren Roso, Daniel Lopez and Brecht de Smet, who encouraged me to write this book.

Figures

1	Forms of movement in the Logic	91
2	The structure of Essence	113
3	The Encyclopaedia of the Philosophical Sciences		157
4	Form of movement in Subjective Spirit	163
5	The structure of the state	248	